Notes to Editors: Peppers was founded in 1948. What began as a small operation making munitions in a workshop at the back of a garage in Woking soon diversified post war when Mr Pepper swapped munitions for sheet metal work. It wasn't long before he realised the electronics market was the future, and control panels soon led to just the manufacture of cable glands and enclosure accessories.

As the business grew, he had to take on more employees until he outgrew the petrol station workshop and moved the business to bigger premises in Camberley. Their name was changed from Peppers of Woking to Peppers Cable Glands and the business grew at an astonishing rate. An acquisition by Currie & Warner (Holdings) Limited was a major growth turning point for Peppers, giving them access to manufacturing processes that facilitated several industry leading designs and innovations.
